TOLD IN EXCITING
PHOTOS AND PICS!

In 1952, characters such as Dan Dare, Digby, Harris Tweed and Jeff Arnold became national favourites.

EAGLE IS BACK!

EAGLE, as you can see, is an utterly new kind of pre-pension paper — and it looks as if there is going to be a very big demand for it. So I suggest you ask your newsagent to order a copy for you each week.

That opening paragraph appeared in the very first issue of the old EAGLE — on 14th April, 1950. Those words are still true today — for the new EAGLE will again break new ground by presenting boys' adventure stories in photo-strip form. The EAGLE of the '50s was exciting and revolutionary — we aim to go much further than in the '60s.

DAVID HUNT, Editor.

HOW TIMES CHANGE...

The new arrivals... the men who capture the action on film for our exciting photo stories!

JOHN POWELL favours Nikon camera systems. His lenses range from wide-angle to a 400mm telephoto.

DAVE WATTS employs Canon cameras and accessories. His favourite lens is the 135mm SLR lens made by Canon.

GARY COPTON also uses Nikon equipment. His 350FA, using a 35mm 180mm lens, are great!

A WELCOME from the STARS

I have mentioned an "Eagle Group" how much I enjoyed reading EAGLE as a boy. Lots of visitors must have had the same feeling, the two points of back issues to me. Good Luck!

I remember the EAGLE of old and I'm looking forward to a good read from the new version of EAGLE.

Good luck to the new EAGLE. I hope you have a very long lifetime!

I was an avid reader of EAGLE as a boy. When went to school the story was the article when about the characters. Our time was great!

PETER DANSTON

The new EAGLE is as exciting as GOODBYE!

JERRY HENRY

Well, what's a word meaning of EAGLE? I got writing and tell us what you think. Please write your name (except on school)

KIDS ARE TOUGH

DARREN DEFIES THUGS!

WINE-year-old Darren Daly was at home with his grandmother when armed men broke into the house. Despite threats, Darren refused to say where the family safe was kept. The shrewd youngster only gave in when one of the thugs said that he would injure Darren's mother on her return home. The cops made their getaway leaving Darren and his grandmother tied up. But Darren managed to wriggle free and raise the alarm.

BIG MOUTH

Want to give someone a blast and let off steam? Well, BIG MOUTH is the only place to do it! But to do it, you've got to be able to take it, too! Your letters were taken from the Big Mouths over taken from the Big Mouths (P) posting.

BAN MOTORISTS

A lot of my dad's mates go on about the problems caused by kids on bicycles.

In my view it's the clowns who drive around in cars that are a nuisance.

I cycle to school every day and I've lost count the number of times a driver has forced me off the road.

Motorists act as if they own the roads and, in my opinion, they should be banned!

Stephen, Conway Island

Sounds a bit like the teacher who says school would be okay, if it wasn't for the kids!

Actually, Stephen, you've raised a very good point. Young cyclists do seem to get a lot of unfair and unmerited criticism.

Of course, there are good and bad cyclists... just as there are good and bad car drivers.

WATCH YOUR LANGUAGE!

Recently, I was talking around on a bus with some of my mates when a woman told us that we ought to mind our language, as she was shocked at the words we were using.

If my mates and I use swear words then that's up to us... we're not asking other people to listen in on our conversations.

People should mind their own business!
Paul E. London

If you were talking around as you say, then I guess that other people didn't have much choice but to listen to what you were saying.

Most people would like to be able to 'vent their own business' and not have to listen to bad language from loved, foul-mouthed folk like you!

Remember, there are other people in the world besides yourself... and they don't always want to hear what you've got to say!

There's £3 for every letter printed in BIG MOUTH so let's hear from you!

WHO better to start our series of EAGLE interviews than PETER DANSON, star of the popular Doctor Who television series. We tracked Peter down at London Airport, just before he flew off to America. No... he didn't fly in the Tardis... he went by Jet!

EAGLE Interview

Peter, you've become famous through your work on TV. We've seen you as the easy-going Tristan Pearson in 'All Creatures Great And Small', as a stay-at-home Dad in 'Holding The Fort', as well-meaning Brian trying to keep his brother in check in 'Sick Or Swine', and now as Doctor Who. Which part have you found the most difficult? Undoubtedly Doctor Who. It's very difficult because I'm following someone as good as Tom Baker, but it's tremendous fun and I enjoy it greatly. Only four actors before you have played the Doctor. Will you be staying with the series for a while?

Yes, I would love to carry on playing Doctor Who for a couple of years. Do you prefer comedy to serious acting? It's not really a matter of preferring it but I just seem to turn things into comedy! The first comedy that I did was 'Holding The Fort' although 'All Creatures Great And Small' was very light entertainment, even though it was a drama series. The first thing that I ever did could hardly be called serious... I played the part of a space cowboy, complete with blond wig! You looked completely at home as Tristan in 'All Creatures Great And Small'. Are you particularly interested in animals?

Not really — apart from domestic cats! I was brought up in a town and had no knowledge of farm animals. Filming the James Herriot stories was really a crash course in how to handle farm animals!

How do you relax? In the summer, I play cricket whenever I can. I play for a showbusiness team, but the side also includes some professional cricketers. It's great fun. I also write songs... which is not really a hobby, more a second string to my bow. Another thing I enjoy is watching television... I watch almost anything! But I guess my favourites are the old black and white films of the '30s and '40s. My favourite TV programme is The Rockford File.

If you weren't an actor, what would you be? I would like to think that I could be a song writer. Apart from doing songwriting gigs, I don't know what I would have been doing. I'm afraid that I didn't work really hard at school and only ended up with these 'O' levels.

Did you ever read comics when you were a youngster? Yes, adventure comics were the ones I used to like. In fact, two of the comics I bought were TIGER and EAGLE!

What is your favourite food? I like Westabbs and milk shake! I reckon I could live on them!

BRYAN ROBSON

IT'S been hard to keep the spotlight off Bryan Robson in recent months, especially when his £1,750,000 transfer to Man. United made him Britain's most expensive footballer. But they'd gained a class player at Old Trafford and now his performances for club and country have proved it. He is now recognised as one of the top players in Europe, able to play a vital role in both midfield and defence. His fiercely competitive attitude makes him a must for the England World Cup team in Spain this summer.

IN THE SKY

The sleek, gray shape whips from their shelters straight on to the runway. With a body-shaking roar, the engines go to full power, and two spears of flame leap from the aft-turbofans as the fighter aircraft streak down the runway. They suddenly pull away from the ground and punch into the sky. Less than 60 seconds later they are at a height of 40,000 feet; their radars locked on target; their complex avionics passing streams of information to the pilots; their missiles ready to fire — at long range or in the twisting, climbing close-range action of a dogfight.

This is the scene as the American McDonnell Douglas F-15 Eagle fighters take to the skies.

The ability of the craft to angle almost straight up from the runway and its incredible agility when in the sky, is brought about because of several factors — the most important being the craft's 'power to weight' ratio. In certain conditions, the engines deliver more thrust than the aircraft's weight and this massive power, combined with the large wing and tail surface area, results in a fighter that is something very special. Its top speed at altitude is more than 2½ times the speed of sound.

STRANGE NAMES!

I'M glad to hear that my friend, Allan Wells, the Olympic 100 metres champion, is settling in well at his new house in Guildford.

Allan and his wife Marge moved South from Edinburgh because they didn't want to be too far from the action. Allan thinks the change will advance his career and I agree with him.

It's not generally known that Allan's second name is Wipper, a most unusual name. Some of our leading athletes have some subtle Christian names.

Sub Car's second name, for example, is Newbold and my full name is Francis Marger!

ARNOLD'S DILEMMA

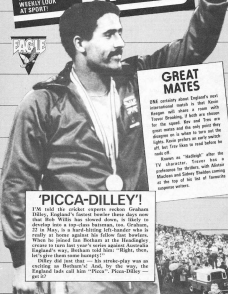

A big problem for Ipswich star Arnold Muhren is whether to sign another contract with Ipswich in the summer or go home to Holland. He wants his children to be educated in Holland. "They're at school age but their English is much better than their Dutch," he says.

Leaving Arnold would be a blow to Ipswich manager, Bobby Robson. "He's a model professional, a pleasure to work with."

Holland will no doubt need him, too — in their future international matches.

GREAT MATES

ONE certainty about England's next international match is that Kevin Keegan will share a room with Trevor Brooking. If both are chosen for the squad, Bro and Trev are great mates and the only pair they sleep on in when not on the lights. Kevin prefers an early switch-off, but Trev likes to read before he falls off.

Known as "Madling" after the TV character, Trevor has a profession for writers, with Adrian Marder and Sidney Sheldon coming at the top of his list of favourite suspense writers.

'PICCA-DILLEY'!

I'M told the cricket experts reckon Graham Dilley, England's fastest bowler these days, runs than Mark Waite has showed down, is likely to develop into a top-class batsman, too. Graham, 22 in May, is a hard-hitting left-hander who is ready to become another big follow that bowler. When he joined Ian Botham at the Handleygate, craves to meet last year's series against Australia. England's way, Botham told him: "Right, then, let's give them some lesson!"

Dilley did just that — his stroke-play was so exciting as Botham's! And, by the way, the England lads call him "Picca", Picca-Dilley — get it?

A marathon a day...

MARATHON running is the fastest growing sport in Britain. Two years ago, there were only 12 marathon races in the UK. Now there are 115.

And the story for the Golden Marathon in London in May has jumped 1000 to 14,000, equalling the New York marathon in size. America is still the place for marathon running, though. It's almost possible to enter a marathon every day, with 310 races taking place there this year. Mind you, if you run all of them, you'd be pretty exhausted!
